Live Trapping Coyotes

- Coyotes can be dangerous and pose a threat to both people and pets
- They are most active at night and in the early morning
- Young are born in April/May with an average litter size between five to seven pups
- Coyotes are potential carriers of distemper, hepatitis, parvovirus, mange, rabies and tularemia, and can also harbor numerous parasites
- Trapping and sanitation/habitat modification are the most effective methods of control
