Rabbit Control

- Cottontail rabbits can be a significant problem in HOA landscaping by causing expensive damage to turf and shrubs
- They average three to four young per litter and can have up to six litters per year
- Rabbits are potential carriers of diseases and parasites
- It is legal to control cottontail rabbits by lethal means when they are causing damage to property
- Trapping and exclusion have proven to be ineffective for large scale problems
- There are no baits labeled for the control of rabbits
